

2-step

You may draw 1 card.

<html>also known as Mini Swipe or Baby Swipe</html>

6-step

If your opponent attacks, you may counter +1 Damage

You don't know nothing

2000

Cannot be used against Dwarves.

is a B-boying move which resembles a rapidly spinning handstand

Airflare

Breaks apart against an attack of 5 or more.

<html>The move emerged from a similar move called the airtrack, while simultaneously travelling in a circular path</html>

Drop

Breaks apart against an attack of 5 or more.

allow b-boys to transition down to the floor and begin performing downrock. Drops may be designed to look flashy, painful, or both

Float

Breaks apart against an attack of 5 or more.

Stationary floats are often employed as freeze poses.

Freeze

Breaks apart against an attack of 5 or more.

Stationary floats are often employed as freeze poses.

Headspin

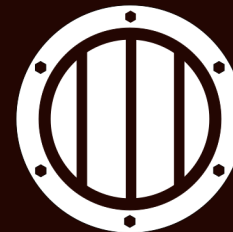

Breaks apart against an attack of 5 or more.

Stationary floats are often employed as freeze poses.

Kick

Breaks apart against an attack of 5 or more.

Stationary floats are often employed as freeze poses.

Kip-up

Breaks apart against an attack of 5 or more.

Stationary floats are often employed as freeze poses.

L-kick

Breaks apart against an attack of 5 or more.

Stationary floats are often employed as freeze poses.

Nip-up

Breaks apart against an attack of 5 or more.

Stationary floats are often employed as freeze poses.

Power move

Breaks apart against an attack of 5 or more.

Stationary floats are often employed as freeze poses.

Spin

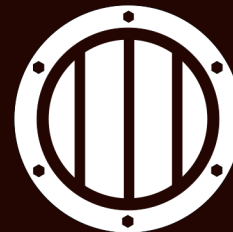

Breaks apart against an attack of 5 or more.

Stationary floats are often employed as freeze poses.

Stab

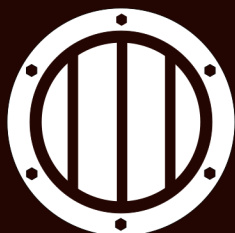

Breaks apart against an attack of 5 or more.

Stationary floats are often employed as freeze poses.

Suicide

Breaks apart against an attack of 5 or more.

Stationary floats are often employed as freeze poses.

Swipe

Breaks apart against an attack of 5 or more.

Stationary floats are often employed as freeze poses.

Toprock

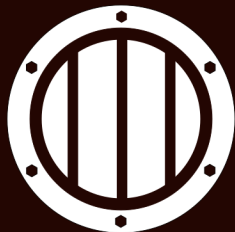

Breaks apart against an attack of 5 or more.

Stationary floats are often employed as freeze poses.

Windmill

Breaks apart against an attack of 5 or more.

Stationary floats are often employed as freeze poses.

Worm

Breaks apart against an attack of 5 or more.

*also referred to as the caterpillar or the dolphin